FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Five Municipalities Win Saskatchewan Municipal Awards

The 12th annual Saskatchewan Municipal Awards program is happy to announce this year's winners. These awards recognize innovation and excellence in local Saskatchewan governments.

An independent, six-member committee reviewed 18 nominations, submitted on behalf of 35 municipalities, to choose the four winning projects. The committee members were:

- Keith Schneider: former executive director of the Saskatchewan Urban Municipalities Association (SUMA);
- Jim Scarrow: former mayor of Prince Albert and former vice-president of cities for SUMA;
- Audrey Trombley: former president of the Rural Municipal Administrators' Association of Saskatchewan;
- Loretta Young: former administrator for the RM of Longlaketon No. 219 and the Village of Earl Grey;
- Don Taylor: former board member of the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities; and
- Jeff Mulligan: managing partner of AHHA Moments Inc. and former mayor of Lloydminster.

Committee member Jeff Mulligan made note of the quality of the nominations received this year: "Each year has key ingredients that stand out as noteworthy when reviewing the Saskatchewan Municipal Awards submissions. 2018, simply stated, hit it out of the park! Rating these winners one, two, three, does not do them justice."

Committee member Keith Schneider says the quality of submissions reflects the great work being done in our province: "The quality and diversity of submissions received by the selection committee clearly reflect community-based initiatives to improve the delivery of municipal services and enhance the economic well-being of their residents."

The awards will be distributed to the winning rural municipalities at the SARM Midterm Convention on November 14, 2018 at 1:00 p.m. at TCU Place in Saskatoon. The winning urban municipalities will receive their awards at the annual SUMA Convention in February 2019 in Saskatoon.
